PREFACE.

THE need of a Tune-Book to accompany The Methodist Sunday School Hymn-Book was acknowledged before the latter was published. For two years the Committee appointed by the Wesleyan Methodist Sunday School Union have carefully and diligently worked to secure a good and sufficient supply of tunes. If they had been instructed merely to collect tunes, the labour would have been comparatively easy. A large quantity of music, much of it original, having been submitted to them by friends and advisers in various parts of the world, their chief difficulty was not in collection, but in selection.

Many composers whose names are as household words, and whose reputation has for years past been very high, have enriched this book with new tunes; and others, of considerable musical ability, and whose knowledge of the needs and tastes of Sunday School officers and scholars is great, have made most acceptable contributions. A large number of old favourite tunes have also been inserted.

Grateful acknowledgment is made of the marked kindness and courtesy of the composers and proprietors of tunes with whom the Committee have corresponded. Great care has been taken to meet their expressed wishes as far as possible. In some instances this has caused a change from the usual version of the tune.*

Where the names and addresses of the composers of selected tunes were known, not only was permission sought for their use, but proofs were submitted for correction. The Committee desire to express their most cordial thanks to these authors for their ready kindness and efficient help.

If copyright tunes have been inserted without the express permission of their owners, it has been done inadvertently, and the Committee beg for indulgence and

* When proof of the tune Evan, printed as usual, was submitted for correction, it was returned with the following note: "Miss Havergal, in the name of all her family, emphatically protests against this jerky version of her father's tune Evan. He never so composed or played it, but in the smooth, flowing equal crotchet time. (See M. H. H.'s setting of it in 'Havergal's Psalmody,' No. 54.) Her father objected to this triple time, and called it an 'American estrangement.'" pardon, with the assurance of their willingness to make proper acknowledgment in subsequent editions of the work.

The Committee have been singularly fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Alfred Rhodes, R.A.M., as musical expert. Mr. Rhodes has rendered great help in criticism, and has paid very special attention to the arrangements and harmonies. Personally, he would have preferred in some instances a different style of music; and he is not responsible either for the collection of tunes, adaptation of words, or progression of harmonies when the tunes or arrangements of them are copyright.

Particular mention should also be made of the great labour and time spent on the editorial part of the work by Mr. William Vanner. His colleagues on the Committee have been greatly helped by him, and desire to testify to this special help.

Generally where tunes are inserted which are also in the Chapel Tune-Book, the harmonies have been retained in order to avoid collision in congregational worship.

In issuing this Tune-Book the Committee hope that it will furnish an abundant supply of music of a high class for School and Family Worship, and for Anniversary Services; and that it will prove of great service to the Sunday School department of the Church of God.
